

Starlight

Out in the cold night,
I see the starlight,
Out of the darkness,
Burning so bright.

No one around me—
Always so lonely,
But can I find someone
To help me to be?

Well look at each star—
It shines alone,
Shines on and on,
And that's how we are—
We're light years apart—
We've got to light up the night;
We've got to make our own light,
'Cause we are the stars.

Out on the skyline,
I see the lights shine,
A thousand sparks out there,
Of so many lives.

So when will I find her—
The one I was meant for?
Well in this whole lifetime,
I may never be sure.

But look at each star—
It shines alone,
Shines on and on,
And that's how we are—
We're light years apart—
We've got to light up the night;
We've got to make our own light,
'Cause we are the stars.

Out on the river,
As still as a mirror,
I see my reflection,
I know my own worth.

So I'll live my own life,
And I'll shine my own light,
And even in darkness,
I'm burning so bright.

'Cause look at each star—
It shines alone,
Shines on and on,
And that's how we are—
We're light years apart—
We've got to light up the night;
We've got to make our own light,
'Cause we are the stars.

We are the stars.
We are the stars.
